

BRYAN LACKEY

Bryan is a professional engineer who started working at Gwinnett County in 1995 after graduating from the University of Georgia. He started as a stormwater and drainage engineer and by 2005 had become the division director of stormwater management where he helped develop and implement the current stormwater utility. He moved to Planning and Development as Deputy Director in 2007. Bryan earned a master's degree in public administration in 2005 from North Georgia State College and University. Bryan and his wife have two sons and live in the Dacula area.